THE GRAVEYARD OF AGLISHCLOHANE

This graveyard is in the grounds of the Protestant Church on the outskirts of the village of Aglish, which is north of Borrisokane on the road to Birr. Also in the graveyard are the very dilapidated ruins of an ancient Catholic church.

The headstones cover a wide range of dates from the early 1700's to the present day. Some of them are in bad repair.

The earliest is a memorial to a William Ryan dated 1738, followed by two to the Billane family dated 1739 and 1744.

Amongst the more interesting headstones is one commemorating two priests of Penal times, a Father James and a Father William Kennedy who were uncle and nephew respectively. Within the ruins of the church is a memorial to a Mr. John Hanly of Derrinvohola, who lies with his ancestors. According to Mr. Dermot F. Gleeson, he was one of the old families of the Civil Survey gentry who were reduced to poverty by the Cromwellian plantation.

There are no memorials within the Protestant church. Several pieces of the church plate are dated 1824,

All the headstones have been copied. Where, because the stone was broken or badly weathered, it proved impossible to decipher a word or phrase, it is indicated thus -----. Where there is a doubt, especially connected with dates, it is recorded ? 1805 ? 1825.
