COUNTY TIPPERARY

SECTION A: BARONY OF LOWER ORMOND

VOLUME 15: PARISH OF LOUGHKEEN

Compiled by Denise Foulkes, 1986

INTRODUCTION

LOUGHKEEN is a parish in the barony of Lower Ormond. It contains about 8,000 acres and lies on the old Birr road from Nenagh some 3½ miles before the village of Riverstown.

Prior to the land confiscations of the Cromwellian era the 'Mannor and Lordship of Lackagh', within this parish, was owned by the Countess of Ormond, Elizabeth Butler, 'by descent from her ancestors'. The heiress-Countess was a grand-daughter of Thomas Butler (Black Tom), 10th Earl of Ormond and wife of James Butler, 12th Earl who was created 1st Duke of Ormonde in 1661.

The remaining owners of the lands in Loughkeen parish were Stephen and Constance MacEgan, Richard Butler, John Grace, Daniel Kennedy and John, Awly, Roger and James O' Cleary.

In the Church of Ireland division Loughkeen is part of the Birr Union, and part of the R.C. parish of Birr-Carrig.

The Church of Ireland church within the graveyard was built in the early 19th century.

The graveyard is divided into two sections, a neatly laid out area around the church itself and a sprawling overgrown older section just beyond the church boundaries.

To the right of the church is a large stone replica of the Victoria Cross won by Col. (then Lieutenant) Thomas Hackett for deeds of bravery during the Siege of Lucknow in 1857, which included rescuing a wounded companion under heavy fire. (London Gazette 1859). He was later accidentally shot in 1880 while shooting partridge. The oldest headstone is to a Mrs. Mary Comerford who died in 1733. There are a number of headstones dating from this period and the early 1800's.

The graveyard is slightly different from the other graveyards in this series in that it contains an unusual number of young children being commemorated. A number of short poems and Biblical references. Also one or two with a delightful suggestion of the characters of the deceased, such as the young man of 24 yrs whose headstone was erected by his comrades and another one to "my gentle loving father and loving energetic mother". All the headstones have been transcribed. In a few cases parts of the inscription could not be read and they are recorded thus -----.

In a number of cases also there is a doubt as to the date, these are recorded as ?1830 ?1850 with the more likely reading first.

LOUGHKEEN 1

How loved, how honoured once avails thee not, To whom related or by whom begot, An heap of dirt alone remains of thee, Its all thou art all the proud shall be. (Odd stone in graveyard, no name attached). 700
