COUNTY TIPPERARY
SECTION C. BARONY OF OWNEY AND ARRA
VOLUME 2: PARISH OF YOUGHALARRA

Compiled by Robert Donfield

The Ormond Historical Society, 1983

THE CIVIL PARISH OF YOUGHALARRA

Youghalarra Parish in the barony of Arra and Owney contains two separate burial sites as follows:

Youghalarra Graveyard - Turn right coming from Nenagh at Newtown village and graveyard is located on elevated site approx. one mile from Newtown village.

Youghalarra Church Graveyard - in Parish Church grounds.

YOUGHALARRA GRAVEYARD

In the graveyard are the walls of a ruined church approx. 73ft long X 22ft wide. This church was probably a fifteenth century reconstruction of an earlier church. On a stone in the south wall is a figure of a human head with inscription "St Coea...n 433 and refers to the patron of the parish St Coelan or Coonlaun. If 433 was year of death this would indicate that St Coelan was a pre-Patrician saint.

The earliest gravestone found was No 79 - Loughlin Hogan who died in 1700. The most predominant names found were Hogan, Brien, O'Brien, Ryan, McGrath and Hayes.

As in nearby Castletown the graveyard in Youghalarra contains some good examples of the art of the early stone sculptors done on slate from local quarries.

YOUGHALARRA CHURCH GRAVEYARD

The present Parish Church at Newtown was erected in 1832 by Father Dan Ryan and was built on the site of an earlier church which was accidentally destroyed by fire. On the south wall of the church is a font which appears to have been taken from the original old church at Youghalarra.

Almost all the gravestones and memorials are dedicated to priests of the parish.

A short distance past Newtown village is the Protestant Church. This was built as a school in 1841 but was later extended and used as a church until the 1920s. It is now a private dwelling. There are no burials around this church.
