Although not many hurling titles have found their way to the parish, the club has always been active and enthusiastic. Hurling was very popular in the parish in the "ditch to ditch" days long before the Association was established. The most famous organised team in the early days of the GAA was known as the "Honeymounts" who won a reputation for tough, uncompromising play. One member of this team, James Nolan of Summerhill, was chosen on the All-Ireland team that toured the U.S. in 1887 in the famous American Invasion.

The "Honeymounts" were organised by Thomas Corcoran of Honeymount who was elected Treasurer of Tipperary County Board in 1888, and later on was Chairman of North Tipperary Co. Council.

One of the best periods of the club was from 1912 to 1918 when amalgamated with Clonakenny they were in three North Tipperary senior finals, but were unsuccessful in each.

In 1915, after defeating Toomevara in the semi-final, they lost to Nenagh in the final, 3-3 to 3-2.

In the 1916 final, they went under to Toomevara in Borrisokane, 3-1 to 1-2.

In 1917, after overcoming De Wets in the semi-final, they were due to play Toomevara again in the final, but failing to turn up in Ardcroney, the championship was awarded to the Greyhounds.

A significant change occurred in 1919 when Moneygall amalgamated with Toomevara for senior hurling, and this combination, which won many titles, lasted until the parish rule brought it to an end in 1935. During this period, Moneygall won the junior title on two occasions, defeating Kilruane in the 1919 final, and Borrisokane in 1929.

Regraded intermediate during the forties, Moneygall reached the final of that grade five times in the decade, winning out in 1943 and 1949, and took the county title in the latter year. The intermediate title was won again in 1962.

The senior team has had mixed fortunes and many disappointments over the past twenty-five years. Beaten by Roscrea in the divisional finals of 1967 and 1970 and by Borris-Ileigh in the county semi-final of 1972, their perseverance and dedication were eventually rewarded this year in winning the North Division title for the first time.

This is Moneygall's first appearance in the county senior hurling final.

Though the present club dates back to the thirties, it is only their third appearance in the county senior hurling final, and they have yet to win the Dan Breen Cup, having lost in '73 to Roscrea, and to Sarsfields in '59 and '44.

However, the dedication of club officials to juveniles over the years is now paying off handsomely, and successes at this level have paved the way for today's achievement. The club has held the county under 21 hurling crown for the past two years, and are still in contention for the championship this year.

Of course their biggest achievement to-date was their victory in the county senior football final some weeks ago, and fourteen of that selection are seeking hurling medals today.

Kilruane have set all other clubs in the county an example which, if followed, can only bring about a vast improvement in the standard of hurling in Tipperary, and who will say that this is not needed at the present time.

The club's predecessors in the Cloughjordan area, Lahorna De Wets won the county senior hurling title in 1902 by defeating Carrick 7-10 to 1-2, and it is interesting to note the recurrence of names of people who took part in that victory, in today's line out.

The Lahorna team was:— Jack Dwan, Jim and Martin Darcy, Dan and Tom Ryan, Rody Nolan, Con Brewer, Din Whelan, Pat Williams, Mick Conway, Mick Moloughney, Jim Connors, Jack Meara, Mick and Paddy Kennedy, Mick Maher, Tim Carr, Mick Cleary and Paddy Behan.

TODAY'S REFEREES

The referees for to-day's games are two of the best known officials in the county at present.

MINOR GAME

Liam Ryan of Holycross has charge of the minor game between Roscrea and Cashel (holders). He is secretary of the Mid Tipperary GAA Board and a member of the County Board, having served previously as secretary of his own club. He is a busy official whose services are much in demand, but this is his first county final

SENIOR GAME

Lattin-Cullen's George Ryan has charge of the senior game, a great honour for such a young referee. George is also a prominent official, and a member of the County Board, and is well-known as a player with his club.

THE MINOR FINAL

The failure of Tipperary to stamp its authority on the minor hurling scene in recent years is causing a great deal of disquiet in the county. For this reason, keen interest will be taken in today's final between Cashel, the holders, and Roscrea.

It will be to those two clubs in particular, that the county will be looking next year for the leadership on the road back to supremacy and today's game should give followers an indication of whether or not there is ground for optimism next year.

Cashel, the holders, go into the final with a very impressive record in under-age competition, and they have been well-represented on the county minor side. Roscrea too had their share of county minors, and they have a great tradition behind them.
