

CLONOULTY OLD CEMETERY GRAVESTONE INSCRIPTIONS

The former Protestant Church, now used as a funeral home, was built in the 1850s. It replaced a much older church that was located further down the graveyard. This older church was completely demolished. A few cut stones, which must have come from this building, can be found towards the lower end of the graveyard.

To the right inside the gate are three slabs with Tau cross carvings. These stones were found, several years ago, on the Horan farm in Torah and placed near the Horan family plot in Clonoulty.

Superscript abbreviations are common on the older headstones. For instance, departed is normally written dep^d, February is written Feb^{ry} and names, such as, Thomas is written Tho^s. In this transcription superscript fonts are written as normal fonts.

The numbering starts from the gate and takes each row in turn including those on the left of the path.
